Introduction

* Resolution Day: Different countries celebrate Resolution Day on different days. In India, January 9 is celebrated as Resolution Day. On this day, the Government of India Act, 1935 was repealed and the Constitution of India came into force. The Constituent Assembly drafted the Constitution of India in its entirety on 26 November 1949 and passed it for implementation on 26 January 1950. Today, the world commemorates the system that changes with time and circumstances. The Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) bestowed the Holy Qur'aan, not one or two resolutions, but a collection of enlightening resolutions that are always and everywhere useful.

* International Women's Day: International Women's Day is celebrated internationally on March 8. It aims to raise awareness of the importance of women and encourage people to take steps to prevent violence against women. In this regard, the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) is the foremost and the only person who has given women their rights. "Woman" was a woman who was destined to be oppressed and abused and to be a luxury for men, sometimes she was mortgaged, sometimes she was lost in gambling and sometimes she was sold in the market. The worst thing in the universe was woman. He had no will and he did not own anything. No one in the society had any respect for him and no place for him. The abomination was Kanshan. But the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) put an end to the differences between boys and girls that flourished in society. Grant equal rights to both of them. The girl who was the apple of her father's eye till yesterday made her heart pounding. - He lifted them from the floor to the heights of the Throne. Upon their upbringing and good training, they bestowed upon their parents the good news of eternal bliss like Paradise and increased their virtue to such an extent that the Holy Prophet (PBUH) said: He would give preference to girls. "(Tabarani)

International Day of the Forest: The resolution to celebrate International Forest Day on March 8 was passed by the United Nations General Assembly on November 8. The purpose of this is to make people aware of the importance and importance of all kinds of forests, trees and tree planting. Let it be known that if there is any reward for cultivating barren land then no part of the land should remain barren.

* World Water Day: International Water Day is celebrated on March 22 every year. The purpose of this is to highlight the importance of water among the people. Islam considers it a waste to pour excess water even in wudoo.

* World Health Day: The World Health Organization (WHO) announces the celebration of World Health Day on April 5 every year. The Holy Qur'an says: Translation: "And do not fall into destruction with your own hands" (Al-Baqarah, para 2, verse 195) The Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) commanded us to stay away from things that could cause death. In Islamic law, it is haraam to eat, drink or at least dislike anything that is harmful to human health or intellect. It happens that man is not his own country of his own species and organs, but all these are the country of the Creator of the universe, which man has entrusted to him. Therefore, any human being is his own caste No one can dispose of the limbs in such a way that common sense would consider it a betrayal of trust.

Earth Day: Earth Day has been celebrated since April 22, 1970. On this occasion, events are held all over the world to raise awareness of environmental protection. The world is thinking of land rights today but the Holy Prophet (PBUH) has issued clear orders regarding land fourteen hundred years ago. He also forbade arrogance on the ground.

World Book Day: April World Book Day is celebrated every year by UNESCO, which draws people's attention to study, broadcasting and copyright. Today, World Book Day The Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) drew attention to a great book like the Qur'aan in the days of ignorance and made them stars of guidance in the sky. Countless people in Arabia knew how to read and write, He placed pens in the hands of thousands of people and adorned them with a wealth of knowledge and action.

* Labor Day: May 1 is celebrated as International Workers' Day. The purpose of celebrating this day is to commemorate the struggle of the workers of Chicago, USA. Labor Day started in 1886 with the demand of workers for eight hours working hours. Trade unions and trade unions and other socialist organizations demanded eight hours of work a day in the factories. He further said that the laborer who works with his hands is the beloved of Allah.

* International Day of the Family: Every year on May 8, the UN General Assembly declares the celebration of the "International Day of the Family". When family life was shattered, the rulers and politicians came up with the idea of saving the family. He said. The Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said that treating his relatives kindly and taking care of them was the source of his pleasure. The Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: You people should look after your relatives and treat your relatives well, because treating your relatives well would bring love in the family, abundance in wealth, and blessings in old age. Is. (Tirmidhi Sharif)

* International Blood Donation Day: Every year on June 14, International Blood Donation Day is celebrated. Fall down In such a situation, the role of voluntary blood donors is no less than that of an angel who saves a human life by donating his blood without any gain, loss or relationship. In this regard, for awareness and awareness, 14th June is celebrated as the International Day of Blood Donation. He saved one life as if he had given life to all humanity.

* Independence Day: Today different countries of the world celebrate the independence day of their country in different histories. The Holy Prophet (PBUH) freed our foreheads from the worship of hundreds of false gods. The world celebrates Independence Day. We should celebrate the day of the great benefactor who raised the slogan of freedom and humanity.

Women's Equality Day: August 8 is celebrated as the day of equal rights of women. There is no need for further explanation here, every woman in the society knows how the Holy Prophet (PBUH) protected their rights and how high He said: The best of you is the one who is better for his wife and children. Islam has taught equality. Mothers, sisters, wives, daughters, women in any form, Islam has given them equal rights with men.

* World Teachers' Day: International Teachers' Day or "World Teachers' Day" is celebrated on September 5 every year. The purpose of celebrating Teachers' Day is to highlight the important role of teachers in society. On the occasion of this day, many seminars, conferences and events are organized all over the world. The Holy Prophet (PBUH) says: There is only one being who has benefited directly from the source of bounty, whose teacher is God Himself and He is the teacher of the whole universe.

World Suicide Prevention Day: World Suicide Prevention Day is celebrated annually by the International Association for the Prevention of Suicide in the world. The Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) not only eliminated all the causes and causes of suicide but also taught courage, bravery, determination and perseverance and made various promises on committing suicide. Depression saves all human beings from death and encourages them to live. Why not make an appointment?

* World Peace Day: World Peace Day is celebrated every year on 9th September. The Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) had stated the importance of peace and fidelity fourteen centuries ago. He continued to be a messenger of peace in spite of his full energy, influence and power in Madinah. The defense is so peaceful that it has ordered the release of prisoners, sometimes on a small ransom and sometimes without a ransom, while scholars are aware of the brutal treatment of prisoners.

* International Girls 'Day: October 8 International Girls' Day is celebrated around the world every year. The history of child abuse is very old. Burying a girl alive as soon as she is born, discriminating between daughter and son, keeping them away from education and many other abuses are human rights violations. The United Nations General Assembly has declared October 11 as International Girls' Day to draw attention to the rights of girls and the issues facing girls. They are concerned about the rights of women but the first voice regarding the rights of girls has been raised by the Holy Prophet (PBUH) and they have been made aware of their rights. The Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: Surely a baby girl has been born in this house. Aqa-ul-Salam made them such a mindset that not only did they raise their daughter but they also got ready to take care of the orphan girls.

* International Men's Day: November 19 is celebrated as International Men's Day. This day was first observed on November 19, 1999. International Women's Day is celebrated every year for the rights of the vulnerable, with stories of women's oppression written in the newspapers, but International Men's Day is generally ignored. The purpose of this day is not to talk about men's rights but to draw attention to men's health rights. Islam is a religion of justice and equality. Just as Islam has given the rights of women to their husbands, so has the rights of women to their husbands. He even pointed out that if prostration to a non-God was permissible, he would order a woman to prostrate to her husband.

* Children's Day: Children's Day is a festival and holiday celebrated globally and in different countries of the world on different dates. The purpose of this day is to honor and respect the rights of children. It was announced at the World Conference on the Welfare of Children in 1925, and in 1954 a global date was set. World Children's Day has been celebrated in many countries since June 1, 1950. It was established on November 22, 1949 by the Women's International Democratic Federation at its meeting in Moscow. The United Nations adopted it on November 20. There is a great reward for the training of children, it has great virtues, so the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) encouraged it and said: The greatest gift is for a father to teach his son the best literature. ”(Tirmidhi) He said, "It is better for a man to teach his child literature than to give alms to the poor half a day."

* Human Rights Day: Human Rights Day is celebrated around the world on December 10. The United Nations raised the voice of human rights six decades ago today, but the Prophet of Islam formally introduced human rights fourteen centuries ago and gave a practical example. Farewell Sermon And the exemplary manifesto is great. It has the honor of being the first manifesto of human rights in the light of historical facts. On the occasion of his first and last Hajj in Dhi Qa'dah 2 AH, Aqasali pointed out all the rights of mankind in front of one hundred and twenty four thousand or one hundred and forty four thousand Companions.

Birthday of the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him): No matter how many revolutions take place in the world today, no matter how many virtues are born The Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: It is better to celebrate the day of birth of this benefactor of humanity than to celebrate each day separately. We should celebrate the day of the great benefactor who raised the slogan of freedom of humanity. If not, then all the days that are celebrated in the world at the same time have to be celebrated. All the days that the world celebrates are the result of the teachings of the Holy Prophet (PBUH). He taught the nobility of the workers, gave a collection of enlightening resolutions to be used everywhere He taught in such a way that he was a perfect example of the Qur'an. Therefore, if the day of Lord of the Universe is celebrated, then it must be celebrated for all days.
